Types of Public Transportation

Kuala Lumpur Light Transit (LRT)

The Light Rail Transit, better known as the LRT, is one of the most used public rail transport with two major routes, the Kelana Jaya LRT Line and Ampang LRT Line. The LRT is the best means of transport to get to most areas of KL that aren't immediately within the city centre.

-Helpline: +603 7885 2585

Mass Rapid Transit (MRT)

The Mass Rapid Transit runs all the way from Sungai Buloh to Kajang. The MRT line features 31 stations along its 51km-long route. A typical single journey is priced at RM1.20 and upwards. All train lines start operating at 06:00 daily. Closing time varies depending on respective stations.

-Helpline: 1 800 82 6868

KTM Komuter

KTM Komuter caters more towards local residents of the city rather than tourists. It acts as a cheaper travel alternative to destinations such as the very well-known Batu Caves. With a one-way trip that costs RM2 from KL Sentral to Batu Caves, the KTM is relatively a much cheaper option to choose compared to taking a bus or taxi.

-Helpline: +603 2267 1200

KL Monorail

The KL Monorail is a relatively simple and well-connected train system network which runs mainly between Kuala Lumpur's premiere transport hub, KL Sentral and Titiwangsa in the heart of KL. The KL Monorail starts operating at 06:00 and ends at 24:00. KL Monorail acts as a link between inner areas of Kuala Lumpur such as Brickfields, Bukit Bintang and Chow Kit.

-Helpline: +603 7885 2585

RapidKL Bus

The RapidKL Bus is commonly seen at most train stations and usually acts as a transit-based mode of transportation for passengers to get directly to their preferred destinations. The buses usually cost up to RM3 which can either be paid in exact change or through tapping your Touch n' Go card twice upon entering and upon exit.

-Helpline: +603 8946 2000

Go KL City Bus

The Go KL City Bus is a free bus service in Kuala Lumpur that takes you to most part of the city's most popular districts, shopping malls, landmarks and train stations. The Go KL City Bus consists of four main routes - the Green, Purple, Red and Blue Line, which has a 5-minute waiting period between buses during normal hours and a 15-minute waiting period during peak hours.

Time & Cost from the Airport (KLIA/KLIA2) to KL City Centre

1. Express Train

One of the fastest transportation modes to travel to and from the airport is the express train (approximately 25 - 35 minutes). However, the ticket price is quite costly - RM 55 per pax, for one way. The express train travels between the International Airports (KLIA and KLIA2) to KL Sentral. You may purchase the train ticket online or head to its main station at KL Sentral. The train provides free porter service at respective platforms and also high speed WiFi onboard.

2. Bus

Buses are just about the cheapest mode of transportation to get from the airport to the city and vice versa. They are relatively safe and fairly comfortable, made up of a fleet of 44-seated air conditioned coaches. The fare is quite affordable - from RM 12 to RM 15 per pax, depending on your pick-up station. Your journey to and from the airport to the respective bus station may vary. However, the standard travel time is approximately 1 hour to 1 hour 15 minutes.

3. Taxi

Taxis are not exactly known to have a good reputation in Malaysia. Most locals avoid using taxis due to their high rates and non-standardised usage of metre and tracking. Hence taxis are not a very popular mode of transportation, but if passengers have no other choice, it is advisable to ask the driver beforehand if they can use the provided meter to get to a specific destination.

Fare: RM3 for the first 1KM, RM0.20 for subsequent 150 Meters

Duration: 1-2 Hours (varies depending on both location and traffic)

4. E-hailing service

Now one of the most popular mode of transportation in Malaysia, the E-hailing service has caught the attention of both locals and visitors due to its high reliability and access through its user-friendly mobile apps, making it one of the fastest ways to get to a specific destination provided that the traffic is smooth. One of the best reasons to use the E-hailing service is the transparent and fixed fares made clear even before you make a booking. Passengers are also covered with accident insurance the moment they enter a car provided through the E-hailing service.

Fare: RM65 (including toll fares)

Duration: 1-2 Hours (varies depending on both location and traffic)

Travel tips

Weather

Typically hot and humid all year round due to its tropical climate, Kuala Lumpur is an ideal destination to visit just about any time of the year. However, KL does experience a fair amount of rainfall throughout the year, especially during the wet season from November to March. Shielded by mountainous valleys in several directions, the weather in Kuala Lumpur is relatively cooler than most parts in Malaysia. Temperature during the day typically falls between 29 degrees to 35 degrees while at night the temperature falls between 26 degrees to 29 degrees. Kuala Lumpur is also rarely affected by monsoon winds coming from either east or west, making it an extremely pleasant city to visit.

SIM Card/Dialling Prefixes

The three main mobile telco providers in Malaysia are Maxis, Digi and Celcom. Tourists can purchase a cotraveller's SIM card just about anywhere, be it at the airport, the city centre or shopping malls. The most popular provider in Malaysia, especially in the main cities like Kuala Lumpur, are Maxis and Digi. However, Celcom has the largest widespread 'Kualaverage' in East Malaysia (Sabah and Sarawak). Each city has its own area code, with KL's landline being 03 followed by the eight-digit number. Every call to a mobile phone requires a three-digit prefix (Maxis = 012, Digi = 016, Celcom = 019) followed by the seven-digit subscriber number.

WiFi/WiFi Rental

Most accommodation providers in Kuala Lumpur also provide free WiFi service for their guests. Most restaurants and cafes provide free WiFi services too, where customers just need to ask the friendly staff for the WiFi password. However, if you're an active user and you're looking for full-day internet coverage, a portable WiFi or pocket WiFi may be a better alternative. This is because a portable WiFi can act as a router while a pocket WiFi can act as a mobile hotspot. It needs a SIM card which supplies the internet to wireless connection devices such as smartphones, tablets and personal computers. A portable WiFi establishes high speed broadband connectivity that can shared by up to 10 users at a time. It is an ideal choice if you are travelling with your friends and family.

Currency

The unit of currency in Malaysia is the Malaysian Ringgit (RM), which is divided into 100 sen. Currency denominations are RM1, RM2, RM5, RM10, RM50 and RM100. Coins, however, are issued in 5, 10, 20 and 50-sen pieces. Licensed foreign moneychangers are found in all urban centres, key entry and exit points, and shopping complexes. The Malaysian Ringgit is issued by National Bank of Malaysia and here's what you need to know.

City Overview

• • • • •

Kuala Lumpur, more commonly known as KL, is the capital of Malaysia and the "International Garden City of Lights." Being a city which has vastly developed over the years, Kuala Lumpur has made quite a name for itself. With KLIA ranked at the 3rd spot for "Top 20 Most Connected Airports in Asia-Pacific" and Kuala Lumpur ranked seventeenth among the cities with the most skyscrapers, it's amazing to think about how far Kuala Lumpur has come since Malaysia gained independence in 1957.

Kuala Lumpur History Timeline

87 tin miners found rich sources of tin around the area.

1862

Rapid growth of Kuala Lumpur attracts new miners around the world, causing gang wars and conflicts.

1869

Yap Ah Loy appointed Chinese Kapitan of Kuala Lumpur, succeeds in establishing law and order in Kuala Lumpur in just a few years.

1880

Kuala Lumpur becomes a modern town with the help of British representative Frank Swettenham as he develops the first city plan.

1946

Kuala Lumpur becomes the capital of the Federation of Malaya.

1957

Malaysia celebrates its independence on August 31 after 151 years of British rule.

1963

Kuala Lumpur becomes the capital of Malaysia.

Top Malaysian Festivals

Chinese New Year

The Chinese New Year celebration (CNY) is perhaps the most important festival for Chinese communities worldwide. The event is celebrated on the first day of the Chinese Lunar Calendar. Each year is named after one of the 12 animals of the Chinese zodiac. The city is transformed into a magical land of oriental sights and sounds with colourful lanterns and beautiful fireworks. One special dish that one needs to try during CNY is the Yee Sang - a mixture of many different vegetables mixed with other ingredients. It is believed that the higher you toss it into the air, the more good luck, health and prosperity you will receive.

National Day (Merdeka)

Malaya (Peninsular Malaysia) gained its independence on 31st August 1957. Since then, the date has become one of the most important days on the Malaysian calendar, celebrated proudly as the Malaysian National Day. Towns and cities throughout the country are decorated with flags and shimmering lights. The celebration takes place at Merdeka Square in the morning, the starting point of a spectacular parade. His Majesty, the King, and government leaders sit among the thousands of spectators.

Deepavali

Deepavali is another festival celebrated by the Hindus. It is also called the Festival of Lights. According to the Hindu belief, several days before the celebration, the Hindus need to clean their houses and their surrounding areas from top to bottom. Then, A 'kolam', an intricate floral decoration, should be made on the floor or ground should be made at the entrances of their homes to attract the Goddess of Wealth, the deity Lakshmi.

Hari Raya Aidilfitri

Hari Raya Aidilfitri is one of the most popular and important festivals celebrated in Malaysia. Many Muslims (and even non-Muslims) return to their family homes (balik kampong) during the Hari Raya holidays. The Ramadan period has communal aspects to it with many of the basic values of the Muslim community, such as empathy for the poor, charity, worship, steadfastness and patience being expressed more during this period. Traditional Malay delicacies are usually served during the celebrations, such as lemang, rendang ayam, rendang daging, ketupat, satay and curry.

Christmas

Another popular celebration which takes place in Malaysia is Christmas, falls on 25th December just like everywhere else in the world. Originally a religious festival for Christians celebrating

Thaipusam

Thaipusam is a festival celebrated by the Hindus of Tamil descent in Malaysia. The Hindus use this occasion to fulfil their vows to their god Lord Murugan who has answered their prayers throughout the year. One of the most popular methods of doing this is by bearing the kavadi – a physical burden made out of an elaborately decorated framework of steel rods and plywood.

This festival is one of the biggest Hindu festivals in Malaysia. Millions of devotees throng to Lord Murugan temples, particularly to the famed Batu Caves temple in Kuala Lumpur, to do penance.

10 Interesting Facts You Didn't Know About Kuala Lumpur

1. Kuala Lumpur is the largest city in Malaysia

With a size of 243 square kilometres (93.82 square miles), Kuala Lumpur is the largest Malaysian city in both size and population. Since the early days of Malaysia's independence, Kuala Lumpur has made its mark on history and spearheaded the country's progress. In recent years, Kuala Lumpur has become renowned as an international metropolis and major world destination for tourists, with its imposing skyscrapers, modern architecture, state-of-the-art technology, world-class hotels and shopping malls, and impressive tourist attractions.

2. Kuala Lumpur was founded by Chinese tin miners in 1857

Interestingly enough, Kuala Lumpur was not founded by any prominent political figure, but just some average tin miners who happened to have stumbled upon the fact that the area was rich in tin. This is possibly why the city has such a diversity of culture to this day.

3. The name Kuala Lumpur is a Malay term which translates to "Muddy Confluence"

"Kuala" is the point where two rivers (Gombak River and Klang River) intersect, while "Lumpur" translates to mud.

4. Kuala Lumpur is known as KL, and its residents are known as KL-ites

Yes, Kuala Lumpur is more widely known as "KL" and its people are known as the KL-ites.

5. KL is home to the tallest telecommunications tower in Southeast Asia

Kuala Lumpur is filled with skyscrapers and one of them is the tallest telecommunications tower in Southeast Asia - KL Tower, also known as Menara KL. KL Tower has also clinched the ranking as the 7th tallest freestanding tower in the world.

6. Hosted the 1998 Commonwealth Games and A1 Grand Prix 2008

The 1998 Commonwealth Games held in KL marked a glorious day in history to Malaysians as it was the first time the event had ever been held in Kuala Lumpur. 7. Ban against excessive use of lipsticks

Did you know that the Government of KL introduced a ban against excessive use of lipsticks back in 1996? Apparently, the Government of KL claimed that "such practices were a prelude to illicit sex."

8. Home to the King's Residence

The Royal Palace, also known as "Istana Negara", was the official residence of the Yang di-Pertuan Agong - Malaysia's King. Seated on a grand expanse of 50,000 square metres of grounds, Istana Negara became the Royal Museum in 2013.

9. The famous Petronas Twin Towers was designed by the Argentinean architect, Cesar Pelli

The iconic Petronas Twin Towers was listed as the tallest buildings between 1998-2004 and still remains the top spot as the "World's Tallest Twin Towers" right until this day. What many do not know, however, is that the towers were actually designed by Cesar Pelli, a well-known Argentinean architect.

10. Kuala Lumpur is the retail and fashion hub of Malaysia

With over 65 existing shopping complexes, Kuala Lumpur definitely holds its position as Malaysia's retail and fashion hub. The city is also home to the fourth largest mall in the world - 1 Utama, which covers over 5 million square feet, and the Egyptian-inspired sphinx-designed mall - Sunway Pyramid.

Main Ethnic Groups in KL

Kuala Lumpur Population in the year 2020 reached 7,996,830 people. The city also has a high Human Development Index. In 2016, Kuala Lumpur had an estimated population of 1.76 million. According to the census recorded, the major ethnic groups in Kuala Lumpur are the Malays/Bumiputera, Chinese and Indians.

Malay

Originally from Southern China and Taiwan, Malays arrived in the Malay archipelago 3000 - 5000 years ago. Through the years, they intermarried and assimilated with other Chinese, Indians, Arabs and Thais. Malaysia's Federal Constitution defines a Malay as one who practises Islam and Malay culture, speaks the Malay language, and whose ancestors are Malays. Malay culture shows strong Javanese, Sumatran, Siamese and especially Indian influence. Linguistically, Malay is Austronesian, but people will recognise vocabulary that is Arabic, Sanskrit, Tamil, Portuguese, Dutch, Chinese and English.

Malays are also grouped officially as Bumiputera, literally 'sons of the soil'. This political term was coined to ensure the Malays' constitutional 'special position', the reason for indigeneity and henceforth agreed rights. Bumiputera additionally incorporates the indigenous individuals of Peninsular, Sabah and Sarawak.

Famous Cuisine: Nasi lemak, satay, curry, nasi kerabu, mee goreng, nasi goreng kampung, rendang ayam/daging, ketupat, lemang, etc.

Interesting Culture: Adat Melenggang Perut - One of the Malay cultures that is still being practised till now is 'Adat Melenggang Perut'. This adat refers to a special ceremony of the Malay family and is usually done to celebrate the arrival of the eldest child. The rituals are performed for mums-to-be in order to have a safe, natural birth.

Wedding Culture: It extends to several customary ceremonies that include the Adat Meminang, the groom asking for the woman's hand in marriage, Adat Nikah, the solemnisation by the Khadi of the wedding, and Bersanding.

Chinese

The first-ever recorded Chinese in Malaysia were found during the Tang Dynasty (618AD-907AD). They came here as travelling merchants bringing their most valuable Chinese silk and porcelain. It shows that the Chinese may have been in this region even before the 15th century when the legendary Admiral Cheng Ho visited Melaka during his first of the seven great voyages.

The Chinese have retained a strong preference in the city they founded. They first came to the Malay Peninsula in the 13th century, escaping dire poverty, and a strong work ethic born out of the need to survive remains a characteristic of the culture. So, too, does a respect for tradition, and events like the Chinese New Year reveal the depth of attachment to their cultural roots. At any time of the year, wonderfully unreconstructed Chinatown is worth exploring for the many windows it opens onto Chinese culture.

Famous Cuisine: Spring rolls, sweet and sour dishes, ma po tofu, dumplings, wonton, chaomein, hot pot, Kung Pao Chicken, Peking Duck.

Interesting Culture: Chinese homes often have altars with Buddha statues. Chinese grave offerings — cardboard microwave ovens, televisions, air conditioners — are burned during holidays as offerings to the dead. There are even cheques, credit cards and passports which can be used by the dead in the other world.

Wedding Culture: Traditional Chinese wedding is still practised up to today where a ceremonial ritual which involves marriage established by pre-arrangement. Despite the long history and many different geographical areas, the six rituals of Three Letters and Six Etiquettes are essential.

Indian

Indians first came to KL in the late 19th century as labourers, mostly from South India, and while many Tamils still work in the construction industry, it is their impact on the capital's food scene that you are most likely to experience directly. Religious festivals like Thaipusam and Deepavali contribute much to the city's dramatic and colourful cultural events.

The Majority of the Malaysian Indians are from ethnic Tamil Indians, with other smaller groups such as Malayali, Telugu, Sikhs and others. Malaysian Indians form the 5th largest community of overseas Indians in the world. Within Malaysia, they represent the third largest group after the ethnic Malay and Chinese. They are usually simply referred to as "Indian" in Malaysia, Orang India in Malay, "Yin du ren" in Chinese.

Famous Cuisine: Banana leaf rice, biryani, butter chicken, chapati, fish-head curry, Kurma, mamak rojak, mee goreng mamak, martabak, roti canai, etc.

Interesting Culture: Bharata Natyam, the Tamil classical dance of India, is an important feature of Tamil culture and is hence popular in Malaysia. Ramli Ibrahim and Mavin Khoo are two non-Indian Malaysians who are world-renowned Indian classical dance performers.

Wedding Culture: Many wedding customs are common among Hindus and Sikhs. They combine local, religious and family traditions. The period of Hindu marriage ceremonies dates from the application (lagan) of tilak. The Saptapadi (Sanskrit for seven steps/feet), is perhaps the most important component of Vedic Hindu weddings. The couple conducts seven circuits of the Holy Fire (Agni), who is considered the primary witness to the vows that they make to each other.

Shop Like A Local

Kuala Lumpur is a rising Asian shopping hub boasting a wide variety of both high-end shopping, as well as street shopping. It even caters to those who prefer to roam around for fresh products, for there are several local markets around. You can obtain international brands, as well as unique handicrafts and handmade items. Just about anything that crosses your mind.

1. Petaling Street

Located in the Chinatown of Kuala Lumpur, the hustle and bustle never ends on the pathways of this famous street. No matter day or night, visitors come here to either dine on the famous street foods or to get local products at great bargain prices! Petaling Street is a shopper's paradise, especially if you want to bargain your way into some cheap deals.

📍 Jalan Petaling, Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia

🕒 9:00am-12:00pm/6:00pm-Late (Monday-Sunday)

2. Taman Connaught Night Market

The "Pasar Malam" (night market) scene in Kuala Lumpur is not one to be missed. The Taman Connaught Night Market has over 700 stalls along a two-kilometre road. Here, you will find authentic local food, as well as clothing, DVDs and CDs, accessories, and other items.

📍 Jalan Cerdas, Taman Connaught, Cheras, Kuala Lumpur

🕒 5:30pm-12:00am (Wednesday)

3. Little India Brickfields

If you are interested in an exotic Indian experience in Malaysia, you should pay a visit to Little India Brickfields. With its colorful maze of textile shops and jewelry stores, plus low-key restaurants serving dosa pancakes and banana-leaf curries, there is a little something of India in every corner. The place is always a bustling street with many visitors and locals alike, and you will immediately notice that you have arrived at Little India thanks to the unique decorations that stand out from the rest of the city.

📍 Jalan Travers to Jalan Tun Sambanthan, Brickfields

🕒 10:00am-9:00pm (Monday-Sunday)

4. Jalan Tun Abdul Rahman & Masjid India

These two streets serve the local Indian Muslim community, and you can find row upon row of stalls selling a wide array of souvenirs ranging from bags, accessories, toys, authentic Indian clothing, food items, and costume jewellery there. This vibrant street market is covered by a massive glass awning tinted blue, providing shade against both sunny and rainy days in the city centre.

What and Where to Eat in KL

1. Curee Cafe

Food Review 1

For those who are the die-hard fan of curry, we have a good news for you! The Japanese curry is as popular as those three mentioned signature dishes and that's why you should consider to give it a try NOW! Another good news, the price is quite affordable! Since the cafe applies the original Japanese cafe concept, there are a few steps need to be implemented in order to get yourself a satisfying do-it-yourself (DIY) dish! (Main dish ONLY; its curry)

Your taste buds won't be alienated by the flavour. Curee Cafe's specialties; Hokkaido and Japanese curries offer a "local-taste" since the curry-dishes have already being modified to fit into the locals' taste buds. It offers a sweet-sour-spicy curry; a balance combination-of the greatest things you should have in a curry! However, it depends on your choices of base, spiciness level and the main. Besides that, the curry also has a light-sensation; this may not be a preference for those who love the strong-spices taste kind of curry. It is also a Family-friendly cafe! Its dishes are genuinely prepared from scratch by the chef!

Another add-ons value, its yummeey Okonomiyaki waffle & Fujiwara Tofu (combined with rice and curry) are also the must-try dishes when you visit this cafe!

Pay this cafe a visit - 40, Jalan 1/77A Off Jalan Imbi, Changkat Thambi Dollah, 55100 Kuala Lumpur. Operating from 12.00 pm to 10.00 pm everyday, except Wednesday.

2. T Bob's Corner

Aliff and Arizal (T Bob's Corner co-owners), together with their team took about a whole year to do the R & D of the art of smoking. They even learnt from YouTube videos and experimented with different shapes, with recycled items. Most of their signatures, the Brisket mainly are smoked for 12 - 16 hours at a low temperature - monitored from time to time. Local woods are used for this purpose; rambutan trees, mango trees and rubber trees, to name a few. T Bob's Corner main highlights are the brisket, BBQ lamb ribs and Sloppy Bob's Burger.

Its Brisket is a beautifully cooked brisket with a deep red smoke ring and heavenly bark! It is so tender and rich in flavours. A perfect mouth-watering BBQ with a pleasant aroma sensation. The sides - mash potato, salad, and grilled corn add on to its perfection! If you are a lamb-rib lover, you should not skip its BBQ Lamb ribs as it is tender, juicy and tasty. The whole meal is a well-combined item that makes you feel happy and overwhelmed at the same time! Everyone's favourite - Sloppy Bob's Burger is reasonably quick and tasted delicious. Juicy-savoury-crispy-sweet & sour. The brisket cast-offs poured onto the fries were so good! One of the must-try restaurants for all the BBQ lovers out there.

So, set aside your long-list of ordinary meals, and head right on over to this extraordinary eatery, T Bob's Corner located at 26-1, Jalan USJ9/5P, Subang Business Centre, 47620 Subang Jaya, Selangor. Operating from noon to 3.00 pm; 6.00 pm to 10.00 pm on Monday to Friday and from noon to 11.00 pm on Saturday to Sunday.

3. Congkak KL Food Review 3

We often speak of 'hidden gems', places hidden out of the way and deserving of more spotlight. So what makes Congkak such a gem? This newly opened restaurant, having opened its doors in October of 2019, has but one goal: to serve delicious, traditional, and quality Malay food. It has inherited the Malay-Nusantara heritage, with a fusion of Malaysian and Indonesian food making a heavy cultural impact on their dishes. However, the food isn't the only thing brimming with culture. The comforting ambience of the restaurant is cultivated by the careful placements of watercolour paintings depicting kampung buildings. This, along with the strings of Malay Golden Oldies filling the air (classic songs from P.Ramlee), the carefully hand-sewn batik coasters, restaurant's unique decorations, and the generous hospitality of the staff, comes together to form a soothing atmosphere.

The main course and what Congkak is best known for, Nasi Ambeng is a beloved meal where a mound of fragrant rice is surrounded by a total of nine different dishes, creating a medley of different flavours that come together in harmony. With freshly prepared dishes such as salted eggs, chicken gulai, serunding kelapa, and beef begedil, there is simply a hundred different ways to tackle this meal! And best of all, every dish has been prepared to perfection. Especially their chicken gulai, with a beautiful sauce that has the rice just melt in your mouth. Another signature dish, ikan wayang. This dish was inspired by the 'Dancing Fish' dish with more of a Congkak flair. The crunch of the golden skin of the fish is a nice contrast to its delicate white flesh, and it only tastes better when paired with Congkak's homemade sambal. The Urup Campur, a dish of nice leafy greens, grated coconuts, tofu, and tossed together with a home-made chili paste, is a good side to go with all the heavier dishes that may grace your table! And who doesn't need a little green in their life? When asked "Which dish is your favorite to prepare?", Chef Firdaus pointed to the Tauhu Telur tower, and we could tell! This delicate tower of handmade egg tofu is a dish of skill, comes out of the kitchen in a fluffy golden shell hiding soft and silky tofu, all sitting on a scrumptious base of nutty rojak sauce. A delicate balance between savoury and sweet makes this labour of love a special combo of flavours that almost anyone is sure to enjoy! An all-time favourite!

Food Review 4

4. Mari Ristorante and Bar Kitchen

Stepping into Mari Ristorante & Bar to be greeted by the calming lull of the dim lights and decor, paired with the strings of Italian music, one can already begin to imagine to be greeted by the delicacies in store. Fans of pizza are in for a treat! Oca pizza, topped with servings of mozzarella, shavings of smoked duck, spinach, sweet chili, and black olives all sitting on a base of delicious marinara sauce, is definitely a great treat! The choice of light mozzarella and earthy spinach pairs perfectly against the duck and olives, with the slight kick whenever you bite into a pepper to cut through the heart of the flavours. Carefully peeled pairs of tiger prawn rest curled together on top of lightly toasted circles of baguette bread, carefully spread with in-house made tartare sauce and then topped with watercress...From the presentation right down to the taste, the bruscheta con gamberi was a delight from start to finish! The fresh prawn was delightfully sweet and springy, paring well with the sauce that held a buttery hint of garlic. Another famous signature, Ravioli di Salmone; homemade squid ink ravioli stuffed with salmon, burrata cheese served in orange sauce is so worth it!

Brasato d' Agnello , the braised lamb cooked with various herbs such as ginger, scallions, and undoubtedly soy sauce, definitely carries its Asian flavours very well. The mutton is deliciously soft, packing a slight heat from the spices, and the perfect vessel to eat it is the very bread it sits upon. The creamy polenta, carefully plated to encircle the main star, is a fluffy delicious side with an amazing texture, only made better when it soaks up the juices of the braised lamb!

Another main dish - Bistecca di Manzo, a medium rare steak sits next to a bold heap of Korean kimchi. Not something you'd expect to see everyday! But fans of steak need not worry, because this is premium quality stuff. Chief Grandi made the note to emphasize that the meat was brought over from Australia chilled, not frozen, definitely explaining just how tender it was in our mouth. The meat itself is very lightly seasoned, as this was to make it easy to pair with the spicy and sour kimchi provided, or to dip into the side of bulgogi sauce as the diner pleases.

Pay this restaurant a visit at No 2, Lorong Raja Chulan, 50250 Kuala Lumpur, Wilayah Persekutuan Kuala Lumpur.

Local Snacks & Desserts

1. Kuih

Kuih are bite-sized snack or dessert foods originating from Southeast Asia. Largely made from rice or glutinous rice, it is actually a broad Malay term which could include cakes, cookies, dumplings, pudding, biscuits, and even pastries. More colorful than a rainbow, what could be considered a Kuih can surprise you, and come in any beautiful shade. And the taste is as varied too!

2. Egg Tarts

Made from flour, butter, sugar, egg, custard, and milk, the Egg Tart is a popular dessert and snack in Portugal, Macau, Hong Kong, Mainland China, Taiwan, Argentina, Brazil, Britain, and various Asian countries. The dish consists of an outer pastry crust, which is then filled with a deliciously creamy egg custard and baked. The taste is best when it is served fresh from oven and the sugars are the most fragrant.

3. Yar Char Kuey

Yar Char Kuey (Youtiao/Chinese Cruller), with origins in China, is a golden-brown strip of dough, fried into a delicious strip. Normally eaten at breakfast, it is a perfect accompaniment for rice congee, soy milk, and regular milk blended with sugar. Conventionally, Yar Char Kuey is lightly salted and made so they can be torn lengthwise in two, making it perfect to be shared with a friend, or a fellow family member.

4. Apam Balik

Originating from the Fujian province of China, Apam Balik became a dessert common in Southeast Provinces of China and Taiwan, as well as Maritime Southeast Asia. The main ingredients include flour, hot water, baking powder, bicarbonate soda, sugar and eggs, mixed into a batter that is fried in a pan. Then, once golden brown, it may be filled with either mashed peanut, margarine, butter, sugar, and even corn.

5. Curry Puff

If you are a curry lover, you must try the Curry Puff. It is a popular snack or appetizer originating in Southeast Asia, usually served hot. It is a bite-sized pie made with a curry chicken and potato filling, put in a deep-fried or baked pastry shell. The curry is thick to prevent it from oozing right out of the snack.

6. Pisang Goreng

Made of banana or plantain (cooking bananas) in a coating of batter, Pisang Goreng is a common snack in the mornings and afternoons of Southeast Asia. After being deep fried in hot cooking oil, the dehydrated banana will become much sweeter. Commonly, the batter uses the combination of flour, either wheat, rice flour, tapioca or bread crumb. Sometimes, coconut milk or milk with vanilla extract could be added into the batter to add aroma.

7. Keropok Lekor

Keropok Lekor (fish sausage) is a traditional Malay fish cracker snack originating from the state of Terengganu, Malaysia. Made of fish and sago flour, it usually served hot. It is slightly greyish in colour with a nice chew, and the snack is eaten with special homemade chili blends.

8. Rujak Buah

Rujak Buah (fruit rojak), is mixed sliced fruit and vegetables served with spicy palm sugar dressing. Different from common fruit salads, rojak is often characterized as a tangy and spicy fruit salad, due to its sweet, hot and spicy dressing made from ground chili pepper, palm sugar and peanuts.

9. Putu Mayam

Putu Mayam, called string hoppers in English, is a rice noodle dish originating from the Indian subcontinent which is usually eaten for breakfast. In Malaysia, Putu Mayam is commonly sold as street food from market stalls or carts, as well as being made at home. These are usually served cold.

10. Popiah

Popiah is a Fujianese-style spring roll which is often eaten during the Qingming Festival, but can also often be found being sold in restaurant or roadside stalls. The ingredients include popiah skin, bean sauce, filling of finely grated and steamed or stir-fried turnip, jicama, bean sprouts, French beans, lettuce leaves, grated carrots, Chinese sausage slices, thinly sliced fried tofu, chopped peanuts or peanut powder, fried shallots, and shredded omelette, making it a healthy snack of choice.

11. Sago Gula Melaka

In Malaysia, Sago Gula Melaka is a sago pudding made by boiling pearl sago in water and serving it with some syrup made of palm sugar (gula melaka) and coconut milk. Despite made from only 3 ingredients, this simple dessert has an awesome taste, and will be tastier if it is eaten cold.

12. Cendol

Made of coconut milk, rice flour jelly with pandan leaf juice, shaved ice, and palm sugar, cendol is a common and popular dessert in Southeast Asia. Along with the green jelly, additional toppings might be added, including diced jackfruit, sweetened red azuki beans, or durian.

13. Ais Kacang

Ais Kacang, literally known as bean ice, is a popular dessert in Southeast Asia with origins in Malaysia. The common ingredients include a large serving of attap chee (palm seed), red beans, sweet corn, grass jelly, roasted peanuts and cubes of agar agar.

14. Tan Fu Fah

Tan Fu Fah, alternatively known as Doufuhua, Tofu Pudding, or Soybean Pudding, is a snack of soy curd with origins in China. It is usually served either with a clear sweet syrup alone, with ginkgo seeds suspended in the syrup, or in a sugar syrup infused with pandan.

15. Indian Sweets

Indian Sweets are the confectionery and desserts of the Indian subcontinent. Sugarcane has been grown in the Indian subcontinent for thousands of years, and the art of sugar has been well developed. Thus, Indian Sweets have vast varieties and long history.

16. Pulut Hitam

Made from black glutinous rice and rock sugar/sugar or palm sugar, along with a dash of coconut milk, Pulut Hitam is a sweet, flavourful and healthy dessert! It is usually eaten for breakfast and widely consumed in Asia.

NIGHTLIFE

The Party Scene of KL

When the sun goes down, Kuala Lumpur comes alive!

As the modern capital of Malaysia, Kuala Lumpur still remains a lively city in the night. If you are a social person, you will definitely find a place to have fun. If you love singing, there are many karaoke joints in KL with good sound systems and food. If you love gin, there is a rising gin obsession in bars.

If you love dancing, you can check out the clubs and rooftop party decks. If you only want to sit and enjoy beautiful music, you can also find many live music venues in KL.

Tons of cool and exciting hangout spots steadily fill up with tourists and locals alike, all eager to experience the best nightlife entertainment that the city can provide. These nightlife experiences in Kuala Lumpur are plentiful as the city is teeming with bars, pubs, and clubs on the streets, and swanky rooftop restaurants and bars situated within five-star hotels.

Even in the aftermath of a setting sun, the city comes alive with nightspots offering a winning combination of lively and friendly ambience, extensive choice in alcoholic beverages, and talented DJs spinning dance-worthy tunes.

Vic's Mai Tai is a delicious, citrus-flavoured cocktail served in a cute little copper bucket topped with colourful fruits. Perfect for Instagram!

The Dynasty from Mantra Bar KL

The Dynasty is a blend of Tanqueray No. 10 gin, grapefruit juice, demerara sugar, and yes, even jasmine tea, served in a classic Chinese teapot.

Saint Croix Virgin Islands from HYDE at 53M

Saint Croix Virgin Islands is a blend of Bank's 5 Island Rum, fresh lemon juice, pineapple juice, and simple syrup served in a bird-shaped glass staying cozy in a nest of straw.

Naughty Butter from Crime Cocktail Bar

Naughty Butter is a blend of whisky, espresso and milk with a top of peanut butter. Sounds delicious!

BEYOND KL : SARAWAK

History of Sarawak

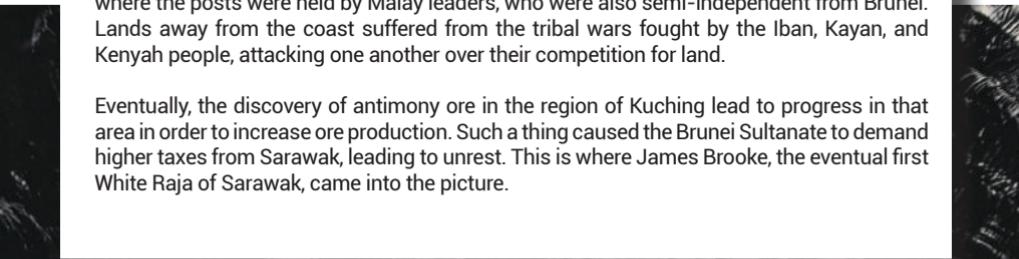

The Land of the Hornbill has a long, illustrious history, stretching back to 40,000 years ago. Evidence of such is thanks to the discovery of ancient human remains, discovered during an excavation in a cave system, along with imagery of ancient beliefs painted on the cave walls. At this time, people lived off the land, forming a hunter gatherer society.

Around the 16th century, most of Sarawak was occupied by the Bruneien Empire, which for a time was self governed by the Sultan of Brunei's younger brother, Sultan Tengah. At the time, Sultan Tengah had attempted to claim the right to the throne of Brunei, saying that he is the true heir as he had been born after their father had been named prince. Having anticipated such a reaction, the Sultan of Brunei declared that he was to be the Sultan of Sarawak, as it had merely been a territory administered by Brunei.

Still, Sultan Tengah managed to consolidate his power in Sarawak. This was before he was killed by one of his very own followers in 1641. Upon his death, the Sultanate of Sarawak also perished along with him, as the land was consolidated into Brunei, making him the first and also final sultan to govern. Despite his relatively short-lived empire, Sultan Tengah still managed to leave his mark in history, thanks to having established positions in the Sarawakian administration system that can still be seen today.

Back in the early 19th century, however, the hold the Brunei Sultanate on Sarawak had loosened, thanks to internal strife for the throne, colonial expansion of European powers, and a heavy problem with piracy. They only held authority along the costal regions of Sarawak, where the posts were held by Malay leaders, who were also semi-independent from Brunei. Lands away from the coast suffered from the tribal wars fought by the Iban, Kayan, and Kenyah people, attacking one another over their competition for land.

Eventually, the discovery of antimony ore in the region of Kuching lead to progress in that area in order to increase ore production. Such a thing caused the Brunei Sultanate to demand higher taxes from Sarawak, leading to unrest. This is where James Brooke, the eventual first White Raja of Sarawak, came into the picture.

The Brooke Era

At the time, the tax hike caused dispute had Sultan of Brunei, Sultan Omar Ali Saifuddien II, order his uncle, Pangeran Muda Hassim, to quell the unrest. Hassim would go on to ask for the help from James Brooke, who had sailed to the Malay Archipelago on a ship he had bought after his decommissioning from the Bengal Army due to suffering injury.

Accepting the offer, James Brooke successfully assisted in quelling the uprising. This allowed him to earn the gratitude of Hassim, who names him governor of Sarawak. From there, he worked to quell the piracy that ran rampant in the seas, and was highly successful in this. At the same time, a close friendship between he and Hassim grew, as they both shared similar ideas regarding piracy, and anti-slavery.

This relationship was not favorable to Sultan Omar and several royal families of the Brunei Sultanate, accusing Hassim and his family of being pro-English. The Sultan eventually summoned Hassim in 1844 to return to Brunei, where he found out that his title of Bendahara had been taken by Pengiran Yusof. Eventually, tensions between both men lead to a civil war that occurred on June 3, in 1845. Assisted by his brother, Pengiran Badruddin, Hassim manages to defeat Yusof and his men, forcing the man to flee from the country and Sultan Omar to reinstate Hassim as Bendahara.

This was unfortunately not tolerated by the adoptive son of Sultan Omar, and a coup was planned against him. Hassim was killed with the agreement of the Sultan, and in retaliation, Brooke attacks the capital of Brunei, Kampung Ayer. This eventually lead to Sultan Omar surrendering Kuching and its antimony mining rights without tax to Brooke, effectively making him Rajah and allowed him to begin the Era of Brooke.

Then on, Brooke expanded his empire in Kuching, continuing his anti-piracy efforts while reforming the local administration, and suppressed the headhunting culture of Dayaks of the past. Thanks to not having fathered any children, he formally named the son of his elder sister as his successor.

Under Japanese Occupation

The Era of Brooke lasted near a hundred years, during which society in Kuching continued to develop, even during a time when Europe was embroiled in a large scale war. Then their uneasy peace was shattered, when on December 8, 1941, Japanese forces invaded Miri, and managed to conquer Kuching on December 24. At the time of this, the current White Rajah, Vyner, was on a holiday in Australia, and was unable to return.

Like this, Sarawak remained under Japanese occupation for a total of 3 years and 8 months, and alongside North Borneo and Brunei, was a single administrative unit. For the most part, the Japanese retained pre-war administrative support systems, only replacing governmental heads with their allies, and the rest were allowed to be kept by the locals under Japanese supervision, as this was in line with a strict attempt at the assimilation of the local people, with propaganda and rules following Japanese order becoming common.

Eventually, allied forces formed the Z Special Unit in order to sabotage Japanese operations in Southeast Asia. And beginning from March 1945, this Z Special Unit infiltrated Borneo jungles. They established several bases deep within these jungles to train hundreds of indigenous people in the art of launching guerrilla offenses against the Japanese, in an operation that was codenamed 'Semut', which would be carried out during the Borneo Campaign (Operation Obe Six) that occur later that year, beginning on May.

The success of this campaign would pave the way for many others. These and other successes by the Allied Forces would slowly liberate Sarawak from Japanese occupation until their surrender after the USA bombed Hiroshima later that year.

When it came to be that Tunku Abdul Rahman announced a plan to form current day Malaysia with Singapore, Sarawak, Sabah, and Brunei, it caused some unease within local leaders, who was wary of the prime minister's intentions in light of the socioeconomic difference between Malaya and the Borneo states at the time. This incited the formation of various political parties in Sarawak that rose to protect the rights of whom they represented.

They would eventually pass a resolution in support of the federation, on the condition that the interests of the Sarawakians would not be compromised. As such, Sarawak was officially granted self-government.

Fun Facts About Sarawak (Kuching)

1. Why Kuching is named 'Kuching'.

Every traveler worth their salt would have learned that 'Kuching' translates into 'Cat'. And if it weren't clear enough, the various statues and the affectionate nickname "City of Cats" would have certainly clued you in! But though the city has embraced their love for our feline companions, it certainly wasn't the reason why the city was named so (As cute as that idea might be!)

Despite the various fanciful stories on how the name came to be, the most likely reason was this: 'Kuching' may have been derived from the word 'Cochin', which was used to refer to a trading harbor in China and British India. From there, the leap is not very far.

2. Modern Longhouses?

There is still a misconception where Sarawakians are still either living in the treetops or in olden longhouses still built in the middle of uncharted forest, lacking modern amenities. This is certainly not true, as many longhouses have actually been developed and look more akin to a long terrace house. They're also fitted with modern supplies too, like electricity and water. You may even be planning to book a room in one!

3. Cleanest City in Malaysia.

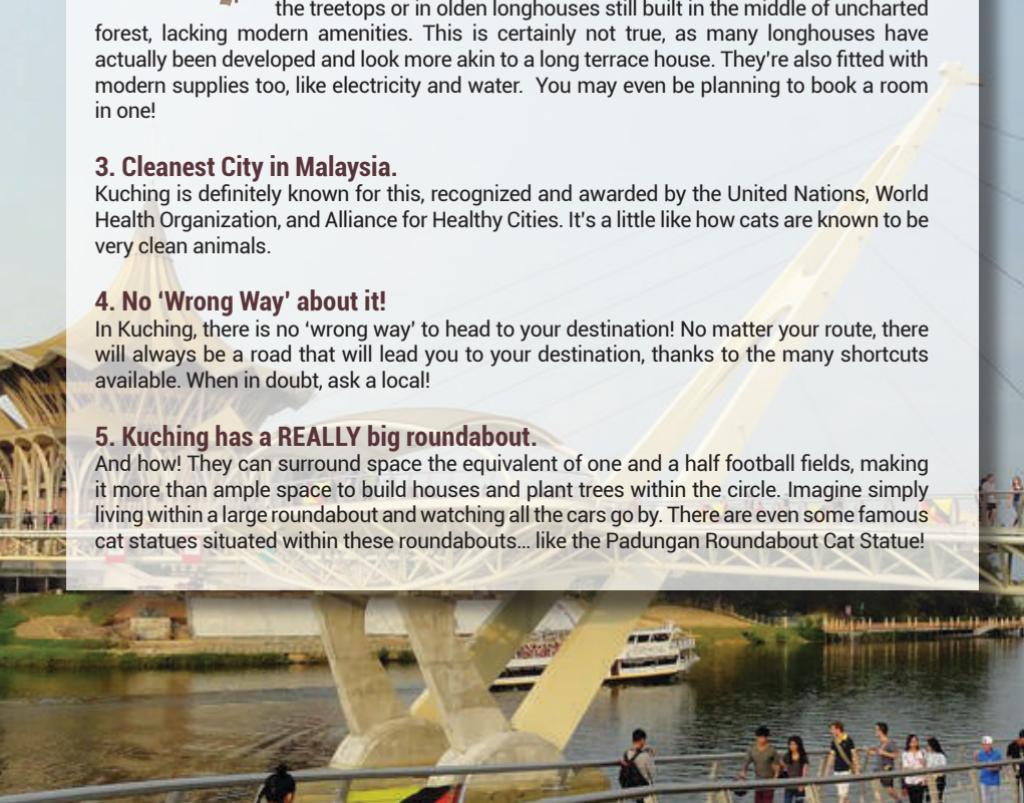

Kuching is definitely known for this, recognized and awarded by the United Nations, World Health Organization, and Alliance for Healthy Cities. It's a little like how cats are known to be very clean animals.

4. No 'Wrong Way' about it!

In Kuching, there is no 'wrong way' to head to your destination! No matter your route, there will always be a road that will lead you to your destination, thanks to the many shortcuts available. When in doubt, ask a local!

5. Kuching has a REALLY big roundabout.

And how! They can surround space the equivalent of one and a half football fields, making it more than ample space to build houses and plant trees within the circle. Imagine simply living within a large roundabout and watching all the cars go by. There are even some famous cat statues situated within these roundabouts... like the Padungan Roundabout Cat Statue!

Ethnic Groups

While it is unable to contest Sabah, the land of Sarawak is one of impressive cultural diversity. There are 6 main ethnic groups, and an estimated over 40 different sub-ethnic groups, all who have grown their roots in Sarawak soil with their very own distinct cultures, languages, and even lifestyles. Together they make up a population of over 2.6 million people.

The largest indigenous groups in Sarawak comprise of people known collectively as the Dayak: non-Muslims that largely practice Christianity whilst still observing the beliefs and traditions of their forefathers. These are the Iban and the Bidayuh people. Then there are the Orang Ulu, and the Melanau, and finally, the Chinese and Malay groups.

The Iban people make up the majority of people in Sarawak, comprising of 30% of the current population. Historically, the Iban made their living as farmers, pirates, and fishermen, and built their famous longhouse settlements in river valleys from where they received the moniker of 'Sea Dayak'. Though they had a frightening history as formidable head hunters, they have since become known as peaceful people. They are also master craftsmen, with the women known for their beautiful special weaving, the Pua Kumbu, and the men for their woodcarving and silversmiths.

Bidayuh people are known as the 'Land Dayak'. Though their population is significantly smaller, standing at 8%.

Nowadays, the Bidayuh can be found largely inhabiting the hills counties on the west end of Sarawak, where they farm rice, maize and sugarcane, along with other crops such as coca, pepper, and rubber. They are known to be master wine makers capable of making fantastic wines brewed from their crop. Impressively, there are around 25 different dialects of Bidayuh that are spoken in Sarawak today; though this may be due to the fact no two villages share the same dialect.

Orang Ulu, who are also known as 'Upriver People', make up 5% of Sarawak's population. They are among Sarawak's most artistic people. Their longhouses are ornate, decorated with hand paintings and woodcarvings. They create music with beautifully carved Sape, their instrument. Both men and women alike adorn their bodies with ornate tattoos, and, like the other indigenous groups of Sarawak, are master craftsmen.

The Melanau now make up 6% of the current population in Sarawak, and are known to be among the earliest settlers in Sarawak. Traditionally fishermen and farmers, the Melanau used to live upriver like the Orang Ulu, but eventually migrated to the coasts away from the larger number of Iban people and built 'tall houses', a type of longhouse famously known for its height. The Melanau are known for crafting a type of "sickness doll" called blum or dakan to be used in their healing ceremonies, and for their unique marinated raw fish dish called umei.

The Chinese make up a large percentage of Sarawak's population, making up 24% of the population. The first Chinese migrants worked in the gold mines or plantations, but eventually through their work ethic and knack for business eventually lead them to become a prosperous group. The dialects they speak are varied, and include Hakka, Hokkien, Teochew, and Hainanese.

The Malay population in Sarawak also stands at about 24%, and they are a varied group of people. This is because many Malay people in Sarawak are likely to have descended from the local indigenous people, and as such, carry with them some part of their cultures. The Malays in Sarawak have also developed a unique dialect, and it is sometimes considered a whole other language, Sarawak Malay.

Getting to Sarawak from Kuala Lumpur

We recommend taking the train from KL Sentral (or bus from Terminal Bersepadu Selatan-TBS or KL Sentral) to KLIA 1/ KLIA 2 and then flying from Kuala Lumpur to your Sarawak, which is the fastest and cheapest option. This route takes around 4h 36m.

1. Public Transport

Local buses and taxis are available in most of the city centres in Sarawak. The bus service is the cheapest form of transportation, and long-distance express bus are also available. One can travel from North to South using these public transportation systems, and vice versa.

2. Car Rental

Car rental services are also available (mostly in the city centre—Kuching). Types of vehicles for hire vary broadly, ranging from basic compact sedans, 4x4 off-road vehicles, to vans and coaches... there is definitely a vehicle out there for your travel needs.

3. Boat And Ferries

Getting on a traditional sampan boat, locally known as Tambangs, can give one a taste of how the locals in Kuching commute. There are also boat services provided from Sarakei and Sibu once daily. Due to the states' vast network of rivers, boats have become the major form of transportation. In Sibu, there is an extensive network of boat services along the Rejang and Igan Rivers. These fast, comfortable and reliable crafts connect Sibu to the towns and villages of the Upper Rajang, and even with Kuching, Sarakei and Bintangor.

4. E-Hailing

For those not comfortable with driving on different roads, there is always the option of using e-hailing services instead!

5. By Plane

The airports have flights linking the towns Sarawak mostly to domestic and international destinations.

History of Kuching

This prosperous capital city of Sarawak with a feline name has an equally illustrious history to match its title. Having been part of the Bruneian Empire since the reign of the first Brunei Sultanate, this city is actually the third to become the capital of Sarawak during such a reign. The first having been Santubong, the other Lindah Tanah.

The city would eventually be ceded to James Brooke for his assistance in the war against piracy, who is then later appointed as Governor of Sarawak, who would begin the era of The White Raja. This turned Kuching into the seat of the Brooke government, which would continue its reign until the end of World War II, where after the war, the final White Raja of the Brooke government would cede Sarawak as as part of the British Crown Colony in 1946 until the formation of Malaysia.

Kuching today is a major hub for gastronomical delights, and the main gateway for culture curious tourists, where the locals have accepted the title "The City of Cats" with much aplomb.

Kuching City

LEGEND

Sightseeing & Culture

There is certainly a lot to see in the great City of Cats other than from the cats themselves! From the historical, to the modern, just take a slow gander and you will definitely find something that fits your flavour for fun.

Kuching Waterfront One of the most famous, if not the most famous tourist sites to be found in already colourful Kuching, The Kuching Waterfront is definitely the place to be if you're looking for some quality entertainment. This picturesque waterfront is undeniably beautiful, especially in the night, but knowing that these lights come from the many hotels, restaurants, and shopping centres make one feel as though they are in the centre of everything.

Islamic Heritage Museum Originally built as the James Brook Malay College, then repurposed as Maderasah Melayu Sarawak in (1930), the Islamic Heritage Museum has gone through quite a few changes ever since its creation. Ultimately, it is still a building whose purpose is to educate, as in its current form as a museum gives visitors a little insight into Malay-Muslim culture through the displays it holds.

Fort Magherita An old fort that was constructed under the reign of Charles Brooke in 1879, this English castle styled fort was once built to fend off pirates who would attack. It has become an important historical landmark, as not only is it a symbol of the Brooke Dynasty, it also houses the Brooke Gallery, making it a place where one may learn of the history of Kuching.

Upside Down House Kuching The first of its kind in Sarawak, the Upside Down House in Kuching is a must go if you're delighted by the slightly bizarre. This fun exhibit, which is decorated in a downright mundane fashion, will definitely be leaving your imagination spinning as you stare at the sofa from the ceiling! This place is perfect for children too, and great change of pace should you need a break from some serious history lessons.

Bako National Park Classified as a protected area in 1957 and covering 27 square kilometres, while Bako National Park may be able to boast of being the first and also the oldest national park in Sarawak, it is also the smallest. One of its main allures is that, though small, the park is still home to an astonishingly diverse cast of flora and fauna, including the 150 to 250 wild proboscis monkeys that make the park their home.

Semenggoh Wildlife Park Established as an orang-utan sanctuary in 1975, Semenggoh's goal has not changed ever since: to rehabilitate and care for injured and orphaned orangutans. Now the biggest Orangutan Rehabilitation Centre in Sarawak and only a 30 minute drive away from Kuching, it is no surprise this centre has become a popular spot to visit.

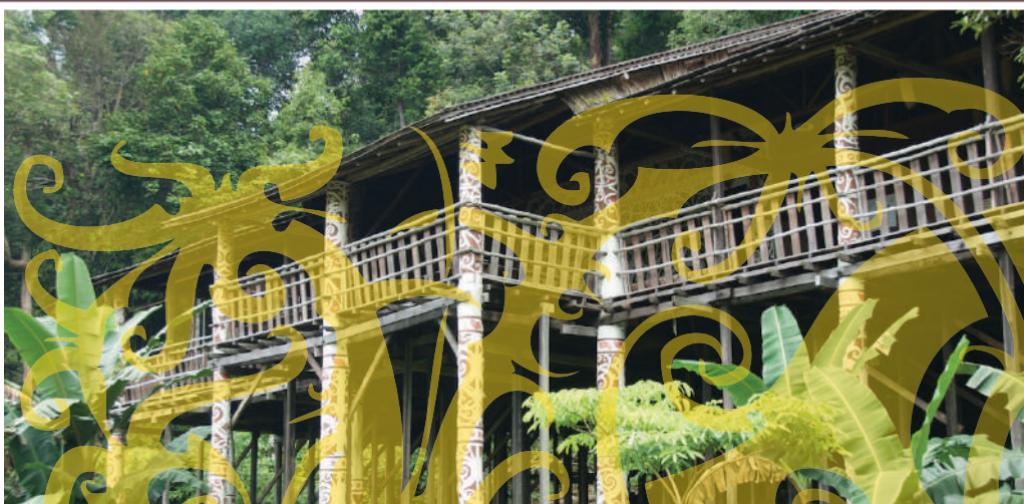

Niah National Park A park it may be, Niah National Park is foremost home to an important archaeological site. Within the magnificent Niah Caves is where the oldest human remains in Southeast Asia were discovered, and upon its walls it too bears important marks of the past in the form of cave paintings that tell stories of centuries past.

Santubong River Found within the region of Sanbutong, filled with running waters full of wildlife, the Santubong River has much to offer. From crocodiles, to fireflies, and even some proboscis monkeys that may be caught hanging around amongst the mangrove trees, there is definitely something to see! So if you're feeling lucky, why not book a cruise? Because who knows, you may see the famous and rare Irrawaddy Dolphins shyly swimming within the river waters.

Annah Rais Long House One of the oldest Bidayuh Long houses that can still be found in Sarawak, the Annah Rais Long-House is part of a community that has yet to be touched by modern development. With a homestay programme in place, visitors are given the chance to stay with the Bidayuh tribe and learn of their ways of living.

Sarawak Cultural Village Interested in experiencing the culture of Sarawak in half a day? Then a trip to the Sarawak Cultural Village will be a must. This special 'living' museum spans across 17 acres of land, and people from the various major Sarawak ethnic groups have come together to inhabit this very village. This is in order to bring to life the vibrant cultures and lifestyles existing in Sarawak, all in one village!

Sightseeing in Miri

Niah National Park For the adventurous and those seeking an archaeological thrill, it's time to put this National Park on your travel itinerary. Known as the site where 40,000 year old human remains have been found deep within their cave systems, the cave holds other remnants of human civilizations of time long past, such as cave paintings depicting boat rides to the afterlife. Of course, you'll also get to see how nature has reclaimed the land too, with a variety of flora and fauna to be discovered!

Miri Crocodile Farm Known as the first, and also largest, crocodile farm in their region of Sarawak, Miri Crocodile Farm houses over 1,000 crocodiles on 22 acres of habitat outfitted with man-made ponds and breeding enclosures. But though the stars of the show, the farm is far from being home to just crocodiles! With over 60 other animals and birds making their home in this sanctuary, you'll definitely find yourself discovering a few new friends.

Taman Awam Literally "Public Park", this is a great place to visit if you're looking for some fresh air. Host to a good number of well-maintained public amenities, including an observatory platform, jogging tracks, and even a suspension bridge, makes this the perfect spot to bring the family! And even if you'd like to have some 'me' time, where else to go but a park with well groomed flower gardens?

Grand Old Lady Despite the name, the Grand Old Lady refers not to someone's grandmother, but to the site of the first ever drilled oil well in the city of Miri. The towering structure was, and still is, a sign of Miri's beginnings into modernization from the fishing village it once was. For those curious about this history, or the general history of the petroleum industry in Sarawak, a trip to the Grand Old Lady and the neighbouring Petroleum Museum Miri is a must!

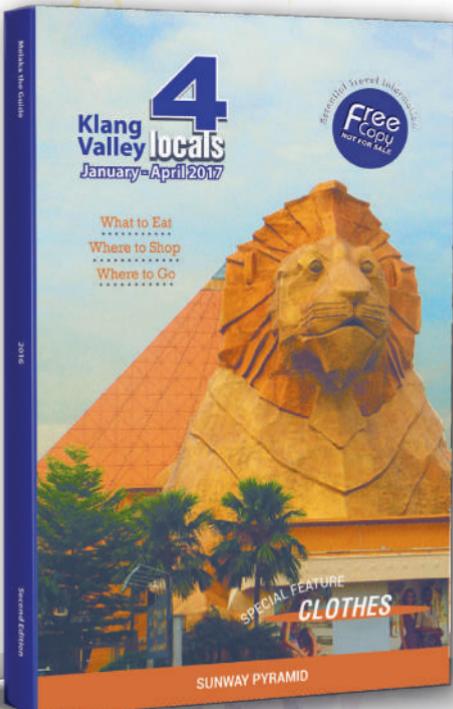

Lambir Hills National Park Only a 30-minute drive away from the city of Miri is Lambir Hills National Park, one of the most ecologically diverse forests in the world, and also the most accessible national parks in Sarawak! With so much biodiversity found in samples of only a specific park, it's possible for anyone to discover something entirely new on each visit! Thanks to the overnight accommodation found at the park, alongside other facilities, it's possible to study the wildlife abundant at your leisure.

Tusan Beach A great getaway for those who want a beach side stroll, Tusan Beach is a beach tucked away about an hour from the city. With the horizon stretching out into the distance to meet the sky, to the natural outcrop of land, there are more than enough beautiful angles to take pictures of, when it strikes your fancy.

Sightseeing in Sibu

Taman Bukit Aup Jubilee Park: In the city of Miri and hoping to find a scenery of green? You may want to pay a visit to Taman Bukit Aup Jubilee Park! This tranquil park has many amenities that will make for a pleasant trip, along with large lakes filled with curious fish! Walk across the large overhanging rope bridge that hangs above the lake, and maybe they'll bob up to the surface to say hi!

Sibu Central Market: Curious about the fresh local produce that goes into your everyday meals in Sarawak? Make a trip right down to Sibu Central Market! With a wide range of stalls offering all kinds of fruit, vegetables, and all the different kinds of meat in a comfortable, clean environment, doing some grocery shopping for the freshest choices has never been better.

Bukit Lima Forest Park: An urban park that is a favourite among the people of Sibu, this national reserve has a peat swamp forest environment that is home to a diverse cast of fauna. This, alongside jungle trails suited for a simple walk or jog, makes for a great place for conservation activities and recreational visitors alike!

Sibu Heritage Centre: If you are following the heritage trail leading all around Sarawak, then the Sibu Heritage Centre is a must visit on that list of yours! Containing exhibits showcasing local Sibu history, to showcasing other cultural pasts of various local ethnic groups via various unique items, right down to educating the public of the local fauna through their taxidermy collection, there is too much abound yet to be discovered!

Wong Nai Siong Garden: Named after Wong Nai Siong himself, whose actions for social reform at the time lead to the formation of The Republic of China. He also lead people from the Fujian province of China to settle in many other countries, and among them was Sibu.

Though this garden has been built more as a memorial for Wong Nai Siong, anyone can enjoy the peace that can be found in the area while learning about this piece of Sibu History.

Tua Pek Kong Temple: The oldest Chinese temple to be constructed in the city of Miri, this temple was built thanks to an interesting history. There was once an unknown epidemic that swept through the town, and with the belief that it was caused by evil spirits, a monk had been brought in to pacify these spirits.

It would seem the epidemic had subsided after the ritual was carried out, and the Tua Pek Kong Temple was built in honor of the monk. And there it stood ever since.

"SABAHAN FIRST VISIT TO KUALA LUMPUR" (KLTG TESTIMONIAL CONTEST WINNER)

I am a Sabahan by birth but I grew up in the UK. I grew up in a little town called Buckingham. It is a small English town with little exposure to the outside world back in the 90s. I was so ignorant, naive, and lack of knowledge of what my home country, especially the capital city, Kuala Lumpur has to offer.

Finally, it was the time for me to return HOME. Upon Landing to KLIA, I was dumbfounded on how amazing the International airport was! it was HUGE, techy and modern! After collecting my luggage, I went on and around the airport to see if I could get a clue of what to do while in Kuala Lumpur. I asked the information counter staff for a complete guide book to KL (so that I didn't have to carry all these brochures I picked earlier). Then, there was this one guide they offered me; KL The guide!

So, I was on my way to the city centre, I didn't realise it takes around 45 minutes to reach the city. The next morning, I went to PETRONAS Twin Towers, as KL The Guide marked it as the most iconic building in Malaysia. Whilst waiting in line, I took some time to read through what else KL has to offer; Masjid Jamek, KL Tower, Independent Square, to name a few. I went to most of the places listed in KL The Guide. Years have passed! Kuala Lumpur has grown to be an amazing city! Full of Life, full of cultures, and full of loving citizens!!! Being in the age of social media information is just at the tip of my finger, it is good to have one source that you can trust! KL the Guide, thank you for teaching me about the city and my country. Most importantly, thank you for making my dream come true, making it possible for me to see what KL is truly about!

Fariz Nur Muhammad bin Ishak (Farnes Fanes)
